This course is $30 and limited to 20 participants. If the course fills, observers will be allowed to attend at $10/person. RSVP and pay via the ECC Meetup site (Meetup: Evergreen Camera Club Photography) after Sept. 28. SVPS members can pay at their Sept. 10 meeting. Bring snacks and lunch, a pad or paper and a pencil. ## September Rewind

by Donna Dannen

October Contest Theme: Fall Color

Open: Wildlife

Connie Rudd, who retired from 35 years in the National Park Service, presented a thoughtful program about not just taking pictures for contests and putting them on one's iPhone to show around. She challenged us to take pictures with conservation in mind and set out to have these pictures published so that their impact might make a difference in national and local environmental issues.

Air quality, water quality, water quantity, wilderness values and visitor crowding on public lands are all things we can easily photograph and send off to magazines, newspapers, organizations and museums as well as local, state and federal agencies to help with stewardship of our public lands.

Several ECC members have photographed bears both in Alaska and in the lower 48. One example for emotional impact would be to send pictures of bears to congressmen to encourage them to keep the Endangered Species Act, or keep bears in Alaska from being shot in their dens as they hibernate.

The main thrust of the program was that we can help with the tools we use often to do some good for the lands we love.
